AN efficient yet mild deterrent without any of the objectionable properties of ordinary soaps, is what recommends the "IVORY" to intelligent and discriminating people. Its cheapness brings it within the reach of every one.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MRS. COOPER'S NIECE.

"Philip," said old John Briggs to his son, "you are 28 years old today."

"So the family record says, father," responded the elegant young gentleman addressed; "I am disposed to place implicit reliance upon it."

"You have done nothing since you left college but kill time."

"It is only retaliation in advance, sir. Some day or other the old chap with the scalp lock and scythe will kill me."

"You are too flippant. Since your Aunt Priscilla left you $5,000 a year you have done nothing but spend the money. Your income ought to be enough for a single man, but you draw on me too."

"I'll try to draw on you less, sir."

"It is not that, Philip. You are quite welcome to a check now and then, for I know that you neither game nor revel, and I don't mind your horses, your club, your natural history craze, nor your luxurious tastes. But still you spend more money and get less for it than most young men of your age; have too much, in fact."

"I don't find it too much, sir. In fact, I was thinking what a graceful thing it would be if you were to double it, a mere trifle to a gentleman of your means. I have to use the most pitiful economy, I assure you."

"Oh, that's it, eh? Well, there is a mode to increase it very much. You have heard me speak of Philander Spriggs, of New York?"

"Money lender and skinflint? I have heard of him."

"Nonsense, Philip. He is quite worthy as well as a very wealthy man, and if he prefers to invest ready money in short loans what of that? I lend my money, or some of it, sometimes."

"But not a cent per cent."

"No matter. I don't propose that you shall borrow of him. He has an only child, a daughter, who will inherit all his vast property, just as you will mine."

"Does she shave notes, father?"

"Phil, be kind enough not to indulge in chaff. I have seen her and talked with her. She is young, handsome, well educated and has good taste, a society gentlewoman with domestic tastes."

"Well, father, you are not so old, and since you admire her so much, I see no reason why"——

"Stop your nonsense and listen. Spriggs and I had a talk over it when I was in New York, and we have concluded if you two come together, to chip in equally and settle a half million on you on your wedding day. With what you have you'll do well enough for a while."

"But," demurred Philip, "I don't like Spriggs for a father-in-law."

"Stuff! You don't marry Spriggs."

"And the name. Just think of it! Spr-r-iggs!"

"What of that? With marriage the name is changed. I don't think she'll gain much by it. Spriggs—Briggs. Six of one and a half-dozen of the other."

"I'd like to oblige you, father. I suppose I must marry some day, but it will be some one I love, and then, Philadelphia like, I insist on a woman of good family."

"See here, Phil," exclaimed the father, who by this time was at white heat, "you never knew me to break my word. I merely ask you to marry for your own good. I point out a wife in every way suitable to you. Marry to please me, and I will not only start you fairly in life now, but leave you all I have when I am gone. Marry to suit some foolish fancy of your own, and I'll—yes, I'll found an asylum for idiots. Now you understand me." And Briggs marched off, leaving his son to his meditations.

"If I stay here," said Philip to himself, "father and I will quarrel. Better give the dear old gentleman a chance to cool off. I'll ruralize a little."

That afternoon Philip packed a portmanteau, and with a fishing rod and mineral hammer, started off to Montgomery county, where an old college mate of his had married and settled, and whom he had long promised to visit. When he arrived there he learned that Boudinot and his wife had gone to Long Branch for the season, and their servants with them, the house being in charge of a caretaker. Philip heard of good fishing in a stream four miles off, and concluded to try it. He found lodgings at a farmhouse near the place, owned by a man named Seth Cooper.

But neither that day nor that week did he see any woman other than Mrs. Cooper or the hired girl.

As he sat upon the veranda one afternoon debating the matter, a wagon was driven up the lane and stopped at the door. Lightly out stepped a young woman in a neat traveling dress, and the driver followed her with a large trunk, under which he staggered, barly as he was. Mrs. Cooper came from the kitchen and exclaimed: "Why, it's Gwenny, declare!"

"You dear old Aunty Ruth!" said the newcomer, hugging and kissing the farmer's wife. "I came to have a good time for a month."

"And so you shall, my dear," was the hearty reply.

Philip took an ocular inventory of the looks, dress and manner of the newcomer as he took off his hat. "A sweet face and graceful figure and presentable anywhere," was his internal comment. "Here's luck. I shall not visit the Branch yet."

"You have a boarder, aunty, said the girl when upstairs with Mrs. Cooper.

"Yes; he's a Mr. Bee," said the other. "It don't look as if he had any call to work for his living, judging by his white hands and his fix ups, and he's plenty of money."

"Bee! Then he isn't a busy bee. But he's good looking; if he be agreeable he'll do for a walking stick."

Mrs. Cooper's mistake as to Philip was natural enough. When she had asked his name on his coming he had said in his airy way, "Philip B., at your service," and she had taken the sound of the initial for his surname. After she had called him Mr. Bee several times Philip saw the blunder, smiled at it, and, as the naval officers say, "made it so;" and when Gwenny came to the table she was introduced, "Miss Gwenny, Mr. Bee." As she was the niece he concluded her name to be Cooper, but as the farmer addressed her as Miss Gwenny and the farmer's wife as Gwenny, Philip chose the more respectful of the two.

As Philip was a gallant young gentleman, and as the young lady was charming in manner, he naturally paid her much attention. When a young man and young woman are thrown together under such circumstances, it is not unusual for a flirtation to follow. It is generally a foregone conclusion.

Philip soon learned that "Gwenny" was the diminutive of Gwenllian, and not of the more stilted Gwendoline, which interested him. Philip's mother had been a Powell, with Welsh blood in her veins, and bore the same name. This latter Gwenllian was a mystery to him. For the niece of a coarse farmer, for Cooper, though a worthy man, was the reverse of refined, she displayed unquestionably gentle manners. Then she showed a fair knowledge of any subject touched upon in conversation.

What was she, a teacher? She had not the look nor the way of the schoolma'am. A governess? Possibly. If so, in a good family. But her belongings were not of the second hand kind. Philip had a keen eye for female apparel. Her lace was of the rarest; her gloves were perfect and of the newest; her dresses were pretty in material and well fitting, though quiet in tone; and though she displayed little in the way of jewelry, the stone that sparkled on the head of a lace pin was unmistakably a diamond. She had been well cultured, and every word and action showed a purity that fitted her name.

On the other hand, Philip was as much a mystery to the young girl. He was a gentleman beyond doubt. But what was he doing there, a man of culture, refinement and æsthetic tastes, in that farm house? He had said nothing of the Boudinots, which would have explained it. With a little affectation of cynicism, which did not ill become him, the man was as clear as water, frank as air. But why did he loiter there with no apparent purpose? The girl did not at first deem she was the attraction, but it came to her after five weeks, and she grew shy, and her shyness for the last week of her stay infected Philip, who became shy, too, and lost all ease. At length she announced to Mrs. Cooper that she had to return home, and that her father, who was in Philadelphia visiting a friend there, would come for her on the following day, and his friend with him. Philip heard this with a depression that told him he had met his fate, and that it lay in the power of this girl to make him happy or miserable for life.

All the night that followed Philip lay and tossed restlessly. He could not sleep. He felt that his father would be as good as his word, but he would win a wife then or never. Near morning he arose, dressed, and sat at the window, until the sun showed itself. Then he slipped out of the house and strolled toward a glen a few yards off, intending to remain out until he heard the breakfast bell. It had been a favorite haunt of the two, and yet for the last few days both had avoided it. He made his way to a mossy rock which formed a sort of rustic seat, and there he saw Gwenny.

"Miss Gwenllian," he exclaimed.

She rose with a rather embarrassed air. "I rested badly last night, Mr. Bee, and I came out at daybreak. I have been here ever since. The morning air seems to refresh me."

"I have the same experience," he said. "I have rested badly, or rather have not rested at all. I"——

She looked up inquiringly, and at something she read in his eyes, dropped her own, while a flush overspread her face and neck.

"Gwenny!" he said desperately, and took her hand. The fingers trembled in his, but were not withdrawn. "Gwenny," he said, "we are to part today. Do you know that I love you dearly?"

"Do you, Philip?" she murmured, but did not look up.

"Gwenny," he said, "I have been sailing under false colors, but innocently enough. I have a way among my gentleman friends of using my initials, and so I am called among them P. B. or Mr. B. When your aunt asked my name I said 'Mr. B.,' and I did not care to undeceive her; but I desire no concealment from you, unless you do not care for me. Then we will part as we met; but I shall be a changed man."

He waited for a reply. There was a slight tightening of her fingers on his as she half whispered:

"You must know that I care for you, Philip."

"Now," said the exultant Philip, "you must let me speak to your father today."

"I fear you may find him rather obstinate," she said. "He sets an undue store by his daughter."

"I can satisfy him of my position in society and that I am able to maintain you. I have means of my own, and have—well, I might say had, great expectations; but my father, who is several times a millionaire, has taken it into his head to fit me with a wife. I prefer to choose one for myself. If you will be content to share what I have, Philip Briggs does not care for more."

"Briggs—Philip!" cried Gwenny, releasing herself from his grasp and looking at him wonderingly. "Is your father's name John?"

"Yes."

"And he lives in Philadelphia?"

"Yes."

Gwenny burst into a peal of silvery laughter. "Do not feel vexed, Philip," she said at length. "I am only laughing at the similarity of our positions. My father chose a husband for me in the same way, and it was to escape discussion of the matter that I took these few weeks' rustication. Mrs. Cooper is my old nurse, and I have called her 'aunty' from the time I could toddle around. She was married from our house. Her husband had very little money and father bought this farm and stocked it. But, oh! think, Philip dear, how your father and mine will chuckle! You are Philip Briggs, and I—I am Gwenllian Spriggs."
—Boston Budget.

A Hot Day.

The hottest day that I ever experienced was during the summer of 1859, while aboard a ship at Key West, Fla. The sun beamed down upon the deck of the vessel and seemed to be so close that it would almost raise blisters. The fires had gone out in the kitchen, and, as I was hungry, I procured several fresh eggs and put them on the deck. The deck was covered with pitch, which was boiling with the heat from the sun. In less than five minutes my eggs were cooked hard. This story may seem incredible, but it is true.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Those Happy Days.

Young Man—Don't you remember me? Old Gentleman—Can't say that I ever saw you before.

"Don't you remember little Sammy Bambry, who used to steal your peaches and break your windows, twenty years ago, right here in Austin?"

"Why, certainly, I remember you now very well; how you used to steal my peaches, and don't you remember how I caught you just as you were getting over the fence one day, and how I tanned your little hide for you?"

"You bet you did! Ah, those happy days will never come again."—Time.

An Incorrect Diagnosis.

A business man and financier of the first rank in Boston is so absentminded that he occasionally forgets to go to his dinner. His customary hour for this meal—when he remembers it—is 2 o'clock. The other day, quite absorbed in business, he worked steadily on until 4 o'clock, and then began to have a quite natural sense of emptiness and yearning in his stomach.

"Dear me," he said, musingly, applying the flat of his hand to his waistcoat, "I wonder what I ate for dinner that disagrees with me!"—Boston Transcript.

Where They Fail.

Caller (at a potograph gallery)—That is a grand picture of the centennial parade; every face perfect.

Photographer (proudly)—Yes, it is an instantaneous picture of the troops on the march—best I ever took.

Caller—Yes, every motion appears to have been caught; the marching troops, waving flags, galloping horses, rushing crowds—but what are these blurred spots on the grand stands?

Photographer (sadly)—I don't know, but I guess they are babies.—Puck.

A Western Story.

Brander Matthews tells a good story of the ethical influence of the east on the wild and woolly west. A young Bostonian, reared beneath the brow of Beacon Hill and educated at Harvard, went to Texas and turned cowboy. He rapidly caught the spirit of the country and as rapidly shook off the outward semblance of tenderfooted eastern habit. Rough bearded, leather clad, sombrero as wide as the widest, 42 caliber Colts on his hips, he was wild as the wildest. Yet within his bosom still burned the flame of Boston culture and refinement.

One day he was riding with a stranger across the prairie. Turning his head suddenly (he was slightly ahead) he saw his companion make a suspicious motion toward his hip pocket. Without hesitation he drew his revolver and shot him. The stranger dropped like a log. The cowboy dismounted and looked at the body of his victim.

"I wonder if he was really going to shoot me?" he soliloquized. "I'll see."

Turning the body over, he discovered a flask of whisky protruding from the pocket.

"Poor fellow!" he said in a tone of regret. "I've made a mistake. I've killed an innocent man and a gentleman at that. He wasn't going to shoot me; he was going to ask me to have a drink. Well," he sighed, drawing his sleeve across his mouth, "the last wishes of the deceased shall be respected."—Washington Post.

Monkey Discipline.

Few persons ever have a chance to watch the actions of monkeys in a wild state, and tame ones mimic the life going on about them to such a degree that we can never feel sure their actions are not a reflection of our own. Mr. Gordon writes of them in India:

They were really very like human beings. I was one day watching an old female who had a young one by her side to whom she was giving small bits of bread which she had evidently just received from my cook room, and with which she was regaling herself at the same time.

Occasionally the little monkey would endeavor to snatch a bit of the bread before the mother was ready to give it to him, when she would administer correction in the shape of a gentle box on the ear.

She was in the act of doing this when one of my servants happened to come out. At once her demeanor changed. She snatched the little one to her bosom with every appearance of maternal solicitude, and did not put him down again until the man had retreated.—Youth's Companion.

Not a Judge.

Albert Hawkins, the executive coachman, is a broad minded philosopher. Like the sun, he shines for all. As the White House coach was standing in front of the portico yesterday morning a gentleman came up, looked at the horses with a critical eye and remarked:

"That is not as good a team as Cleveland's, is it?"

Albert's black face was covered with an expression of unutterable disgust, and he remarked: "Now, boss, you ought to know more than to be saying such things like that to me. You'll get me in trouble. The other day I was standing out here and some ladies came along, and one of them says: 'Albert, I am glad that President Harrison kept you in your old place.' 'Thank you, mum,' says I, 'for your kindness.' Then she says: 'Albert, Mrs. Harrison is not as pretty a lady as Mrs. Cleveland, is she?' There were lots of people standing around listening to what she was saying to me and what I was saying to her, and I tho't I would fall off the box; but I just drew myself up and said: 'Madame, I ain't no judge of ladies.'"—Washington Letter.

Suicide of Scorpions.

Bately M. Serge Noirkoff, of Constantinople, gave an instance of the sort in question. He caught half a dozen of these creatures, he says, and deliberately put the question to the test. Arranging on the floor a circle of glowing charcoal, having no break in it, a scorpion was placed in the center. Although the circle was large enough to prevent the scorpion being injured or even incommoded by the heat if it remained in the middle, the animal, finding itself surrounded by fire, began to look about for the means of escape. At first its movements were slow, but soon its movements increased, and finally it raced in a frantic fashion around the inner circumference of the charcoal. After racing for some time in this manner, it retired to the center of the ring, and, deliberately plunging its sting into its back, put an end to its life in a few seconds after a few convulsive movements. The remaining five were tried successfully in the same way, and each with a like result.—La Nature.

A new industry has been invented by a clever English girl. She calls herself an account and auditor for large households. She finds plenty of employment in looking after the business of a few families of large expenditure whose heads have not taste for the work.

Chicago women are looking after the working girls of that city. They have a home for self supporting women, which has been patronized all the year by two hundred and fifty women, and the Illinois Women's Press association gives them free popular weekly entertainments.

It is not possible to arrive at the amount of capital already invested in electric light companies in the United Kingdom, as a very large proportion of the work is being done by private companies; but the limited companies engaged in electric lighting have a nominal capital of more than $30,000,000, of which about half has been called up.

FACTS ABOUT COLLARS.

James G. Blaine wears a standing collar.

Gen. Grant wore high and low collars alike.

The ancients wore collars of silver and brass.

Thomas Hood wore a high collar to hide a tumor.

The standing collar had its origin in Germany in the reign of Otho IV, 1218.

Piccadilles of red and green cloth came into fashion at the close of the Fifteenth century.

Gen. Spinola's collars are laundered by a colored "aunty." They measure 3 1-3 inches in width.

Charles Dickens when a young man wore a black stock. In later life he assumed the turn down collar.

Altitudinous neckwear dates from the directoire. Collars frequently concealed the ears at that period.

The sumptuary laws of Richard II prohibited collars from being worn. The law was never enforced.

Bill Nye says he always sports a "straight band collar, without any projecting masonry or ornamental facades."

The early English laymen did not cover their necks. The mailed collar or gorget was introduced during the crusade.

A straight white collar, somewhat like that of a few years ago, was introduced into England in 1480 by the Duke of Clarence.

Byron imported his famous low rolling collar from Belgium. He delighted in exhibiting his white, almost feminine appearing throat.

Washington wore no collar at all in the last years of his life. The stock or "swathe" had been discarded, and the old gentleman rarely went out visiting.

The starched ruff was replaced by the Shakespearean collar, favored by the Puritans and continued until the death of Charles II, when lace became the rage.

The poet Whittier affects a cross between a high and low collar. It may be described as a wide band folded near the middle and having a soft overhanging roll.

The jeweled collar of John de Sheppey, bishop of Rochester, who died in 1360, weighed four and a half pounds. It was a fine example of the clerical splendor of the period.

In 1564 the Elizabethan ruff became the style. They sometimes projected fifteen inches from the neck. The ruff became odious to James I, and he ordered it to be taken off.

President Buchanan's friends were highly incensed because Representative Abraham Lincoln made a speech at Springfield ridiculing the president's notorious neckwear. He said it always reminded him of an "undertaker's shop."—Clothier and Furnisher.

Nerve.

A restaurant man of Lincoln was looking gloomy yesterday as he gazed from the window at the dusty landscape. Being surrounded by a representative of the lever which moves the world he commenced to unbosom himself. "There came in here this morning," he said, "a stranger of distinguished appearance. He was haughty in his bearing; yes, very haughty. The days of the years of my journey in the land have been many, but I don't think I ever struck a more commanding looking man. He took a seat at a table and glanced over the bill of fare very critically. Finally he ordered a porterhouse steak, with innumerable vegetables. He asked me if I had any new cucumbers. I hadn't any.

"'Well,' said this haughty gentleman, 'send out and get some. And tell your infernal waiter that I don't want to become a centenarian before the meal is brought me.'

"I was deeply impressed by his imperious manner and I rustled around and hurried the cook, and in a very short time the meal was placed before him, and it was a nice one. He seemed to enjoy it. He ate slowly, sipped three cups of coffee and repeated several of his vegetable orders. Finally he concluded the repast, and came to the cashier's desk where I was on duty. He picked his teeth calmly and then said:

"'I am ready.'

"'Ready for what?' I inquired.

"'Ready to be fired. I haven't a red cent.'

"Now how was that for unlaundered, double and twist, fast dyed gall? How does it strike you as a sample of nerve, with a wire edge and brass tip? I was too paralyzed to fire him. I just invited him to go and told him that if he ever came to my fashionable rendezvous again I would sweeten his coffee with sulphuric acid. He smiled blandly and went his tortuous way." And the proprietor of the hash emporium sighed wearily.—Nebraska State Journal.

He Was Satisfied.

He had rung a door bell on Cass avenue, and a woman had opened the door, spit out half a dozen words and shut it against his toes, when he calmly proceeded to ring again.

"Didn't I tell you I didn't want to buy a hat rack?" she exclaimed as she opened the door again.

"Yes'm; but you don't suppose I would have the impudence to ring your door bell simply to ask you if you wanted a two shilling hat rack? I should consider it trifling with you."

"Well, what do you want?"

"In addition to hat racks I have tin lifters, stove handlers, chimney cleaners, furniture polish, silver paste, sham holders, the best cement in the world, feather dusters, babies' bibs, napkin rings, coarse and fine combs, hair pins, lemon extract, insect powder, face powders, cures for corns, pins and needles, gold and silver thin"——

"No!" she shrieked as soon as she could interrupt him.

"Ah! very well, madam. Good day. I am satisfied now that you do not desire any goods in my line."—Detroit Free Press.

He Could Talk.

"It is very embarrassing, isn't it, Jennie," said a young lady to her friend, "when you are alone with your beau for the first time? When William escorted me home last night we were so bashful that we could hardly find a word to say to each other."

"Indeed! I haven't found it so."

"You haven't?"

"Not at all. My beau talks all the time and doesn't give me the least chance to feel embarrassed."

"He is a good talker, then."

"Well, I should smile."

"What does he do?"

"He's a barber."—Boston Courier.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, JUNE 14, 1889.

NEXT TUESDAY'S ELECTION.

On Tuesday next the people of this state will vote upon the proposed amendment to the constitution prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage. The amendment is printed elsewhere in this paper in full. At the outset of the campaign we announced that opportunity would be given all those who wished to express their views on either side of the question, to do so through the columns of this paper, under certain conditions. Communications have been printed weekly, in which the subject has been thoroughly discussed, and the arguments of both the friends and opponents of the amendment have been brought to public attention. But very few of the articles received were rejected, and these for reasons given at the outset, viz: they were too long, or not signed by any one, or were written by non-subscribers and were excluded by articles from our subscribers, and there was not space enough in the paper for all.

No other paper in the county has devoted nearly as much space to the discussion of this question as has been given by the COLUMBIAN. In many parts of the state the newspapers have been printing articles for both sides as paid advertisements, but the COLUMBIAN has given its columns freely, without any compensation save some fault-finding by each side because we gave the other side a hearing.

The question has been asked, "Why don't you come out squarely for Prohibition?" We have also been told that "it might be to our interest to oppose the amendment editorially." In the face of such conflicting advice we have seen fit to use our own judgment in the matter, and to conduct the paper through the campaign just as it has been conducted.

The proposition to submit a prohibitory amendment to a vote was born in a republican state convention, passed by a republican legislature, and then cast adrift, disowned by its originators, as a matter that "has nothing whatever to do with politics." The republican party as an organization has done nothing for the amendment during the campaign. The democratic party as an organization has taken no hand in the public discussion of the question. The press generally throughout the state, excepting prohibition organs and liquor dealers' papers, and a very few others, have taken no decided stand. It is a question of policy and morals about which the people are as competent to judge, as the papers are to tell them how to vote.

But even though we had felt that it was a public duty to take a decided stand on the question, it would have been difficult to determine on which side it would be, as there has been a friendly disagreement between the editors of this paper, not upon the desirability of eradicating intemperance, but upon the best method of accomplishing this result. Such being the case, our columns were thrown open to both sides, with the understanding that no editorial comment should be made.

The question is one for the people. Those who believe that absolute prohibition will best reach the desired end, will vote aye on the amendment, and those who believe that the sales of intoxicants are best regulated by high license, will vote, no.

On the one hand it is asserted that "the evils of intemperance can be stayed by prohibition. No man should be licensed to ruin other men. High license has proved a failure. Personal liberty does not permit one man to do that which injures his neighbor. Prohibition will save millions of dollars annually to the families of the laboring classes."

On the other hand it is urged that "prohibition will not prohibit, and that it has proven a failure wherever it has been tried. It is not possible to regulate men's appetites by legislation. The adoption of the amendment will ruin millions of dollars worth of property that has been built up under the protection of the laws of Pennsylvania, without any compensation. Farmers are prohibited from making wine or cider for sale, by this amendment. The prohibitory laws of the state do not prohibit. It is now forbidden to sell without license, to sell to minors, to sell on Sunday, to sell on election day, to sell to a man who is intoxicated, or one of known intemperate habits, and yet there is no doubt but that these forbidden acts are frequently committed. The favorable working of the high license laws has so largely reduced the number of licensed places in the state, so greatly diminished drunkenness, that it ought not to be interfered with at present. The strict enforcement of the present laws will accomplish more than the adoption of an amendment that is so sweeping in its character that it will not be enforced. The more stringent laws are made, the more difficult it is to have them obeyed."

These are the claims as presented by both sides. Every intelligent man is able to determine for himself for which side he will vote. As this is a proposed change in the organic law of the state, it is the duty of every citizen to cast his ballot on Tuesday next. If you are in favor of prohibition, it is your privilege to vote that way; and on the other hand, if you believe that the sale of liquor is best regulated by the present laws, go to the polls and vote, "no," fearlessly and openly, for it is an honest opinion, and you have a perfect right to express it by your vote.

One thing should be borne in mind, namely, that if the amendment be adopted, it will stand for five years and cannot be changed, whether it operates favorably or unfavorably. Should the legislature pass a prohibitory law, it could be repealed at any session. Ponder well, act conscientiously and fearlessly, and vote as you think is right.

Senator Washburn, of Minnesota, says the corrupt use of money is undermining political institutions of the country and that there must be a stop to this business soon or there will be danger of a revolution. The late Minnesota Legislature, he says, was the worst ever known in the state and from what he had heard of New York legislature its practices must have been of a similiar character. The politic house atmosphere in the south is much purer to-day than in the north and west.—Mohave Banner

VETOED BY THE GOVERNOR.

The Judges' Salary Bill Fails to Receive Official Sanction.

Governor Beaver has vetoed the bill increasing the salaries of Judges of the State. In giving his reasons for withholding the official sanction, he says:

"The Legislature undoubtedly has the right to fix the salaries of the Judges of the different courts of the Commonwealth, and if it were not plainly evident from the terms of the bill itself, and from what is known outside the bill as to the intent of the Legislature in regard to it (that the bill is to have present application and to affect the salaries of all the Judges of the Commonwealth now in commission) it might well receive executive approval.

"If executive action in regard to this bill were to be based upon personal grounds it would have received approval immediately upon its passage. Every consideration but that of hard and unrelenting duty points to its approval. The bill as it was discussed in the Legislature, as it has been discussed in the public prints, since its adjournment, as its intent is viewed by the people and finds expression in their general speech and it is known to be regarded by many of those who are supposed to be benefitted thereby is to be considered as having present general application.

"As this question is now viewed, it is not one as to whether the Judges are well paid or ill paid. It is not a question as to whether the men of high character and of undoubted professional attainments who honor our bench by their presence could make more or less than they now receive as salaries in their profession. It is not a question as to whether the revenues are, or are likely to be, equal to the expenditures of the Commonwealth for the next two years. The question is high above all such considerations as these. No public question since the incumbency of the present executive has received such wide discussion and has been carried to the executive chamber in such undoubted and unequivocal tones. There can be no doubt that if the present bill became a law and the present Judges of our courts were to avail themselves of its provisions without legal protest from any quarter, the Bench would be degraded in public esteem and its decisions upon other questions fail of the respect which they now receive and to which they are undoubtedly entitled.

"The members of our Supreme Court especially need relief. The bill affords them no relief whatever. Increased pay does not mean increased ability to work. If the Legislature had provided a secretary for each member of our Supreme Court, or two or three good stenographers for the entire court, relief could have been had and much more satisfactory work rendered by the Judges. It is fair to say, and perhaps ought to be said in this connection, that the only Judge to whom the question of the applicability of this bill to Judges now in commission was squarely put, replied without hesitation: 'It never occurred to me that this bill could relate to any Judge now in commission or that any one of them could receive any benefit from it.' This, however, is not the popular belief, and it is well-known that it is not the belief of many of our Judges."

REPLY TO 'A FARMER."

EDITORS COLUMBIAN, DEAR SIRS:

"A Farmer" in last week's issue of your paper occupies nearly two columns of Biblical sophistry to prove something that exposes the naked fact which all universally admit, viz: that drunkenness is wrong. Hence from the same logic license is wrong. Mr. A Farmer said, "It is not from the use of liquor that harm is done, but from the abuse of it." Hence, admittedly, wrong is done. This concedes the whole points "I admit," said he, "that drunkenness is a terrible thing, and it is wrong." Hence as grave a charge against drunkenness and the liquor traffic as any preacher or prohibitionist I have yet heard make. It is from the abuse of liquor that so much crime, destitution, abuse, misery and want follow in its wake. He is not blind to the fact that at least three-fourths of all the crimes are directly due to the abuse of liquor. This great struggle for prohibition is all on account of the abuse of liquor which abuses morals and society. And yet Mr. Farmer will vote and counsel others to vote to license the abuse of liquor. Through all the history of the traffic its progress in crime, vice and venality is unsurpassed by any other evil that ever cursed the earth. Wherever liquor is licensed it is abused, and when abused its results are but the natural fruits of the traffic—licentiousness, robbery, murder, and every vice in the catalogue of crime enumerated by St. Paul to the Gallations V., 19, 20, 21: "That they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." He also quotes the passage—"There is nothing from without a man that entering into him can defile him, but the things that come out of him these are they that defile." Now, Mr. Farmer, according to your logical reasoning, a man or multitude of men may drink and revel in drunkenness and nothing comes out of them that defiles them. Your conclusion, from the above text, I infer, is that men are not responsible for what they say and do when under the influence of liquor. This, of itself, should be sufficient reason for prohibition. If drunken men are not responsible for their actions through temporary insanity or dethronement of reason in consequence of licensed liquor, who is responsible? Every advocate for license is responsible for all the harm done through the abuse of liquor just as surely as the inebriate who does harm when intoxicated.

Again, will you please inform the people whether in the Old and New Testament times licenses for the liquor traffic were high or low, or not licensed at all, and what were the forms of government and the modes of dealing with crime.

Perhaps your caricature of the preachers is ill timed and may not correspond with the scriptures after all. Jesus said in Matthew X., 34: "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword." How do you know but that the issues between right and wrong are but the dividing of the people upon their conscientious principles which the righteous will defend to the death. Other people read the Bible as well as yourself. In this fight there are two sets of leaders—preachers and liquor dealers, and you will find the true representatives of the church among the one class or the other. Drunkenness is wrong and you have so admitted, and will also yet sanction it by your vote and influence. How, then, can the preachers be fanatics when they oppose it, preach it, and teach it, by whatever name you choose to call it, Gospel, Truth or Prohibition.

Yours, truly, W. C.

THE GREAT FLOOD!

Clearing up the Wreck!

FIVE THOUSAND LIVES LOST!

SUNDAY IN JOHNSTOWN.

JOHNSTOWN, June 9.—To-day is the tenth day since the disaster in Conemaugh valley occurred and the extent of the fatality can be appreciated when it is known that bodies are still being found where ever men are at work. To-day one of the morgue directors was met and asked the usual question: "How many bodies were recovered to-day?" "Oh, not very many," he replied, "I believe there were about forty altogether." The loss of life has been so great that forty bodies found in one day, even if that was the tenth, was considered a light showing. The remains that are now being removed from the drift are far advanced in decomposition, and the physicians in charge are advocating their cremation as fast as found, as it is almost impossible to handle them safely. The work of clearing away the debris is progressing very encouragingly. The workmen were not required to proceed today, but nine-tenths of them volunteered to continue. Governor Beaver arrived this morning about 4 o'clock He spent the day in visiting the ruined portions of the city and in driving up the Conemaugh valley. He held a conference this afternoon with the committee heretofore in charge and as a result will assume control on Wednesday morning. He left this evening for Philadelphia. The two large hospitals here, the Cambria and the Bedford, have but little to do now, but a large corps of physicians are kept very busy. At Cambria hospital sixteen persons injured by the flood were cared for, and but two died, Miss Maggie Hughes and Miss Willower. The tent hospitals have been practically abandoned, as none of them have had a case for several days. The health of the valley is unusually good, notwithstanding reports of a threatened epidemic.

THE NUMBER OF BODIES FOUND.

Up to this evening there were about 21,000 registered, and the list is still increasing. The number of the lost is placed now at 5,000 by those who held it would reach 10,000 a week ago. A conservative estimate is between 3,500 to 4,000. Up to date there have been 1,500 bodies recovered.

THE RELIEF FUND.

In a conference with a relief committee to-day Gov. Beaver stated that he has $250,000 in his hands now, and that a committee of seven reputable men of the state would be appointed to distribute it; that there were 200 men who would be responsible for $500 each; that he would give his bond to the state treasurer for $1,000,000 with these two hundred men as bondsmen, and the state treasurer would then pay out the $1,000,000 for the necessary work. When the legislature meets the money withdrawn from the treasury could be appropriated. He said that the money already subscribed should be used entirely for the relief of the sufferers, and the money from the state treasurer could be used for restoring the vicinity to its condition before the flood. All debts already contracted for the removal of the debris should be paid, but all money paid out for this purpose from the relief fund shall be refunded, so that every cent subscribed for the relief of the stricken people shall be used for that purpose alone.

WILLIAMSPORT—STORY OF THE FLOOD IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF THE CITY.

The city passed a quiet Sunday, the contrast between this and one week ago being truly wonderful. Services were held in most of the churches, and some idea of the damage done the buildings was obtained. The first Presbyterian, Christ's church and Trinity, each had their organs badly damaged by the water. In St. Paul's Lutheran church the electric motor that pumps the organ was flooded and a large number of new books of worship, which had but recently been received, were damaged by the flood. Among other churches that suffered were the Mulberry street Methodist, Market street Lutheran and Immanuel's Reformed Church of the Disciples. The city mission foundation walls were injured and the edifice is now badly out of plumb. All classes are very indignant at some of the wild reports sent out by individuals who talked for publication. Our own people never exaggerated the situation either as to loss of property or life. The Associated Press agent sent out as early, as full and as accurate information as was forwarded from any source. In light of the actual facts, such falsehoods are outrageous in the extreme and have done great harm, imposing upon the charitable people abroad, and putting the people here in a false position. Col. Thomas V. Lloyd, of this city, who was hemmed in a fishing cabin on Larry's creek, in the northwestern part of the county, to-day, made the following statement: The valley of Larry's creek from Salladesburg to the mouth of the stream is swept almost as clean as a carpet floor. Not only houses, barns, outhouses, horses, cattle, and grain, were swept away, but even the very soil itself has been washed out so that what was once blooming and fertile farms, is now nothing but a barren mass of stones. Every bridge on the creek was swept away except the one below Salladesburg at Malloy's, which still stands though it is badly damaged, one abutment being gone and a large tree driven through its centre. The scene in Salladesburg on Monday beggars description. Houses were swept from their foundations as many of them upset, bridges were lodged in trees, and outhouses, boardwalks and planks from the road were scattered and piled up in all directions. The borough was filled with debris of every kind and the whole creek from there to its mouth was a scene of devastation and ruin. The highest water reached these people at 2 o'clock on Saturday morning, and they were compelled to flee from their houses to high grounds in the midst of intense darkness and in drenching rain. The men worked in water up to their armpits trying to save people and stock. One family of four women and five men were compelled to take refuge in a cherry tree, where they spent several hours in the night amidst the pouring rain, and were finally rescued about daybreak just as the tree was swept down the stream. The farmers are completely ruined, and most of them will be compelled to seek homes in other localities, as there is no soil upon which to raise a crop of any kind. The body of Henry Kreiger, one of the victims of the Maynard street bridge, was found this afternoon. Of the three persons carried away by the bridge all are now accounted for.

IN AND AROUND LOCK HAVEN—THE PEOPLE CHEERFUL AND LABORING HARD TO HELP THEMSELVES.

The condition of things have changed but little. Some of the stores have opened and are doing business with the portion of the stock which was saved from damage by the flood. The urgent needs of the sufferers are being supplied, and provisions are constantly arriving. A car load of lime from Bellefonte and a car load of disinfectants from Philadelphia were received and distributed.

The body of William Emerheiser, drowned at Altoona, was found, Saturday, at Mill Hall. People continue cheerful and are laboring hard to help themselves as much as possible. People are praying for a continuation of the cool weather to avert an epidemic of sickness. The houses are damp and mouldy.

The water supply continues to hold out and the gas was furnished to a portion of the city. Monday morning several manufacturing establishments not greatly damaged by the flood started up again.

There is great suffering at Salona, Charlton, Lockport and Liberty, small villages in Clinton county, where great damage was done, and in one or two of these towns the only general store in the place was swept away. Several wagon loads of provisions received from Philadelphia were sent out to those places. Reports from the points in the county not before heard from are arriving and all tell of great damage by the high water. Small rivulets swelled to raging torrents and houses were wrecked in most unexpected places. Among the drift piles corpses have been found which were washed from cemeteries at points up the river.

The work of removing the water from cellars moves slowly for want of appliances. Inquiry and examination as to loss and damage shows greater destruction than was at first supposed.

The town is orderly. There is no drunkenness, and the whole population is at work assisting one another out of the trouble which has fallen upon them.

WORD FORM THE GOVERNOR—HE DESCRIBES THE CONDITION OF THINGS AT JOHNSTOWN.

Governor Beaver has sent the following telegram from Johnstown to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, Stone:

"Arrived here about 9 o'clock this morning. The situation is simply indescribable. The people have turned in with courage and heroism unparalelled and a decided impression has been made on the debris. The next week will do much more as they have many points open for work. Everything is very quiet. The people are returning to work again and gaining courage and hope as they return. There need be no fear of too much being contributed for the relief of these people. There is a long steady pull ahead requiring every effort and determination upon the part of the people here, which is already assured, and the continued systematic support and benefaction of the generous people of this country."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, June 10, 1889

Harrison will give anti-Mahone Virginian republicans a hearing to-morrow. A delegation of Virginia negroes called at the White House Saturday. They say that Harrison told them he did not propose to recognize Mahone. But as one of this delegation expressed it: "Its mighty queer if Mahone is not recognized by the appointing power, that every man appointed to a federal office in or from that state happens to be a shouting Mahonite." While this crowd is quarrelling over the spoils, democrats here are looking forward to carrying the state by much larger majority than Cleveland and Thurman did.

Verily the ways of providence are inscrutable. The fight between Blaine and Harrison has been indefinitely postponed on account of the news received from Hayti It seems that the fellow who was engaged in making a treaty with France that would endanger the Monroe doctrine has been so badly licked by the rebel general that he is no longer in a position to make treaties, hence we have no need for a commission in that country, and Blaine has no excuse for attempting to bulldoze Harrison into letting him have his way. The next news from Hayti may change the face of the matter.

Secretary Windom has, in deference to a wide expression of condemnation refused to accept the opinion of the Solicitor of the Treasury, that it would be unlawful for the Catholic University of America, that is to be established in this city, to bring from Europe a corps of instructors. The matter has been referred to the Attorney General and if he decides the opinion of the Solictor to be good law the officers of the University will go to congress in order to get an amendment to such an absurd law.

Disappointment at not receiving an office is having a bad affect on James Jackson, of Alabama, who was a candidate for the District Attorneyship given to Parsons the engineer of the "white man's party" fiasco. He is in such a bad way that his family has been telegraphed to come on. He is crazy.

Among the appointments by Harrison last week were a democrat and a negro. The negro was made receiver of public moneys at Huntsville, Alabama, and the democrat marshal of the western district of Louisiana.

Cranks seem to have the advantage of ordinary people in the matter of "luck." For instance, look at the case of Capt. G. A. Armes, U. S. A., retired who has just had his third sentence of dismissal from the army commuted by the President to confinement within such limits as may be presented by the Secretary of War, and to deprivation of the right to wear the uniform and insignia of his rank in the army for a period of five years. The offenses for which he was tried this time were intruding into the inaugural parade and attempting to pull the nose of Gov. Beaver, of Pennsylvania. The court marshal found him guilty and sentenced him to dismissal. Most people regard him as crazy enough to be in an asylum.

Julius Caesar Burrows, the Michigan Congressman, whose principal distinction is the possession of a voice that is pretty good imitation of a foghorn, and who hopes to be speaker of the next House of Representatives, is very much troubled for fear that the wicked democrats will glue the republicans trouble when the time comes to organize the House. It is a pretty commentary on the rules governing that body for Burrows to say that with the assistance of one experience member he could keep the House in a deadlock for two years of its existence.

P. M. G. Wanamaker is anxious to stop the handling of the mails on Sundays. The business men of the country would be likely to vigorously protect against such a move. The Western Union Telegraph Company would probably pay Wanamaker more than he paid for his position if he could stop all mails on Sunday. It would be worth at least one million dollars per year to that concern.

There is a rumor here that Patrick Eagan recently appointed Minister to Chili, had been recalled on account of the revelations in the murder case of Dr. Cronin at Chicago. The rumor is denied at the state department.

Ex-Senator Riddleberger is making himself the laughing stock at Washington by his antics. If he is not sent to an inebriate asylum soon it will be too late.

Col. J. C. Kelton has been appointed Adjutant General of the Army, to succeed Gen. R. C. Drum, recently retired. He has been Gen. Drum's assistant for several years.

Two hours a day is the time given by the members of Harrison's Cabinet to seeing the public. Quite exclusive these gentlemen are growing.

Base Ball at Benton.

An aggregation consisting of nine stalwart men from Cambra swooped down upon nine "little boys" selected from the base ball element of Benton, and the way the Cambra Giants made our little ones hunt for the "round piece of leather" was exceedingly tiresome for the many spectators who were fortunate (?) enough to witness the—I guess it could be called a game. The immense foundations of 44 year sluggers from Cambra pressed the four boys deeper in the earth, while five little boys from Benton left and returned home safely their scalps still remaining. Out of justice to our Benton youths me must say they scarcely expected to be confronted by a combination club of a sprinkling from Shickshinny, Dushore, Stillwater, Cambra, etc., and they ere certainly to be commended for the nerve they displayed in tackling such a strong aggregation, and although beaten their opponents would certainly feel foolish to crow over so unequal a contest.

Shop without them. I consider your Sulpher Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been entirely cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulpher Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. YATES, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier before the public.

Merit Wins

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all Humors, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, overcomes That Tired Feeling, creates an Appetite, strengthens the Nerves, builds up the Whole System.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

Leaders in styles new styles of neck wear. Linen collars— cuffs— hosiery —shirts—handsome dress shirts at Lowenberg's.

Personal.

Dr. I. W. Willitts has been making some improvements to his residence, corner of Fifth and Market streets.

J. G. Wells went to New York this week, where he will spend some time taking an optical course.

Rev. W. C. Leverett, Col. Freeze, E. R. Drinker and Geo. E. Elwell attended the Episcopal Convention at Reading on Tuesday and Wednesday.

There will be services in the Lutheran Church next Sunday morning and evening.

Judge Ikeler is making some improvements to his residence.

Children's Day was observed at most of the churches last Sunday. The floral decorations were quite elaborate.

Don't miss the concert Friday evening at the Opera House for the benefit of the flood sufferers at Williamsport.

M. J. Hess, the dentist will soon move into the Conner property on Fifth Street, now occupied by F. P. Billmeyer, esq.

Twenty-two head of cattle from people living in Espy broke into the fields of Mr. I. S. Kuhn last week and destroyed a large portion of his grain.

Rev. W. C. Leverett took the Johnstown disaster as a subject for his discourse last Sunday morning, and preached therefrom a most instructive sermon.

That portion of Mr. Derr's article in last week's issue, which reads, "Paul says that money is the root of all evil" should have read "the love of money is the root of all evil." It was the printers ommission.

If you want a good watch, at a low price, call at S. R. Bittenbender's, Benton. Jewelry, chains &c. nearly at cost. Repairing promptly done and warranted. May 17-4t.

Mr. C. F. Knapp has made some great improvements upon his home on South Main Street. The roof has been somewhat changed into modern architecture, and the external part beautifully painted.

We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to attend the reunion of the Fritz family on the 20th inst. at the Hess Maple grove in Sugarloaf. No doubt it will be a very pleasant occasion, and it would gratify us to be able to accept the invitation.

F. P. Billmeyer Esq. purchased the Harman property on Market street at public sale last Friday for $7950. This is marvelously cheap for one of the most desirable locations in town. The property cost the last owner over $10,000.

Travel over the Red Rock bridge below town has been entirely cut off since the flood carried away the centre pier. The location should be changed so as to avoid the dangerous railroad crossing, and an iron bridge should be erected.

The Bloomsburg & Sullivan railroad will carry all passengers free on Friday June 14th, who purchase a ticket for the benefit concert given in the Bloomsburg Opera House this (Friday) evening. Proceeds will be forwarded for use of those who suffered at Williamsport during the recent flood.

The peculiar purifying and building up powers of Hood,s Sarsaparilla make it the very best medicine to take at this season.

Mr. John Billmeyer died suddenly at his home in Montour county, near Pottsgrove last week, and was buried Sunday last. He was a brother of Peter Billmeyer of this place.

At the Susquehanna Synod of the Evangelical Church held at Hazleton last week, J. R. Bittenbender was elected as one of the Directors of the Orphans' Home at Loysville.

J. J. McHenry, of Benton, on Saturday evening, June 8th, caught seven trout, the largest of which measured 17 inches, the rest averaging 13 inches. On Monday evening following he caught one measuring 17¼ inches, and five other averaging 12 inches.

The ladies aid society of the Evangelical church will furnish strawberries, ice cream, and other delicacies of the season, this Thursday eve'ng, at the home of Joseph Garrison on Fifth street, to all who will have the kindness to patronize them. Everybody is invited.

Dr. J. R. Montgomery went to Johnstown last week to look for his brother who lived there. He returned Monday and reported that he found him alive, but that his office was completely swept away, and he had to run for his life when he saw the rush of water coming.

The grand success of the K. G. E. festival was due in a great measure to the earnest efforts of its young lady friends, and the Bloomsburg Cornet Band's delightful music; to both the thanks of Theta Castle is hereby tendered.

Don't fail to attend the base ball game at Athletic Park Saturday afternoon between the home nine and the Anthracites of Wilkes-Barre. The game promises to be a most interesting one, as the nines are very closely matched, having played a game last summer, which ended with the score standing one to one. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

J. W. Staver took a trip to Jersey Shore last week to see what ruin had been wrought by the waters. He had a hard time to get there, going by rail, by boat, by stage and afoot. He reports that the mill in which Mr. Halfpenny, formerly a member of the firm of Caswell & Co. of Bloomsburg, is interested, is so badly damaged that it may have to be abandoned. The entire stock is destroyed, and the walls of the mill are undermined.

Much anxiety was felt here several days last week by the friends of Elmer E. Moyer, who was feared to be one of the victims of the Johnstown flood. He was traveling in company with Dr. Bower of Shamokin, and when last heard from was at Renova, and expected to go from there to Johnstown. A dispatch from Johnstown after the flood indicated that Dr. Bower's body had been found there. After much telegraphing, it was learned last Sunday that both the Dr. and Elmer were still at Renova, safe and sound.

List of letters remaining in the Post Office at Bloomsburg for week ending June 11, 1889.

Rev. W. T. Auman, M. B. Birdseye, Mrs. Carrie Buch, Jacob Honsinger, F. W. Lajsina, Mrs. Jennie Keltner, Joseph H. Kline, Mr. Henry Kurtz, Mrs. P. T. Miller, Miss Lizzie Newman, Joseph Nichart, H. B. Paxon, Mr George Whitenight, John Yetter.

Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

GEORGE A. CLARK, P. M.

A grand concert will be given in the Bloomsburg Opera House, Friday evening, for the benefit of the Williamsport sufferers. Selections will be rendered by the following quartette: Miss Annie Miller, Mrs. C. W. Lockard, Mr. J. Y. Glisson, Mr. C. W. Lockard, Miss Mann, pianist and others. The Bloomsburg Orchestra, which has been increased to nine pieces for the occasion, will assist. Don't fail to assist this worthy cause by attending. Tickets 50, 35 and 25 cents, for sale at F. D. Dentler's.

The second base ball game of the season was played at Athletic Park between the Sunbury and home nines, the visiting nine being badly done up. The following is the score:

EVA RUPERT,
Chairman of Com.

Mrs. Rachael Kuhn died at her home in Espy Sunday June 9th, at the advanced age of 85 years, 1 month and 25 days. She was born near Easton, Pa., where she spent her younger days, and was there married to Mr. Isaac Kuhn. In 1835 she and her husband moved to Columbia County and bought the farm now owned by N. U. Funk, Esq. For twelve years they spent a pleasant life, and were blessed with five children, two sons and three daughters. Her husband died in 1847, and one year later the farm was sold, under the will, to Daniel Snyder, with a dower remaining for her benefit. In 1848 she moved to Espy and for 41 years has made that her home. She was of a kind disposition, and hence leaves a large host of friends to mourn her loss. Of the five children, only one, Mrs. Thomas Creveling, survives her. Funeral services were held at the Lutheran Church, Espy, Wednesday morning, Rev. E. A Sharretts delivering a very appropriate sermon. The remains were interred in Rosemont Cemetery, Bloomsburg, along side that of her husband.

At the first indication of disorder, the deranged or enfeebled condition of the stomach, liver, or bowels, should be promptly rectified by Ayer's Cathartic Pills. These Pills do not gripe, are perfectly safe to take, and remove all tendency to liver and bowel complaints.

The Groves are Going.

The continued cutting of timber throughout the state has so depleted the woodlands that the lumbermen are now attacking groves of trees wherever they can find them. Along the creek on the Rupert road, mills have been at work, and what has long been known as "Barton's Grove" has entirely disappeared. Years ago, this was one of the many popular resorts for picnic parties, and a large number of the middle aged people of this town will remember many pleasant hours spent in this grove in their childhood's days. The trees on the lower side of Barton's bridge have also been cut down, and the work has been commenced on the little grove this side of the bridge. This will probably go on until all the trees along the creek on both sides are gone.

Some years ago the ravine on the other side of the river at the ferry was a popular picnic grounds. There was plenty of shade, pleasant rambles over the hills and along the river shores, boating, fishing and other pastimes. In the days of the Carver regime at the Normal School, the students frequently took Saturday rambles over there. Now many of the trees are gone, the spring is polluted, and the railroad track has spoiled the walks along the banks.

So it is everywhere. The groves are disappearing before the march of railroads and the woodman's axe. There are very few accessible places left where the people of Bloomsburg can spend a summer's day in the woods. The Rupert grove is small, and has no conveniences, and the only other pleasure ground is Oak Grove. This has been fitted up by a company at great expense. Water pipes from the town mains supply a fountain, an ice cooler and water closets. A dancing pavilion, tables, swings, a kitchen, eating stands, and other buildings in rustic architecture, are scattered over the grounds. Oak Grove has been visited by large railroad excursion parties frequently, and all have expressed great satisfaction with the location and the accomodations. But the lease of the company will expire next year, and then unless the people of the town shall take some action this beautiful grove, like all others, will fall. The grove has not been appreciated and patronized as it should have been, and perhaps, as is frequently the case, its merits will not be fully known, and the need of such a resort will not be greatly felt until it is a thing of the past. Such a place as Oak Grove would be a valuable property for the town to own, and if it would dispose of the so-called "Park" that is used only for ball games and circus grounds, and purchase a grove for the use of all the people, the town authorities would be doing a great public service.

Forced to Leave Home.

Over 60 people were forced to leave their homes yesterday to call for a free trial package of Lane's Family Medicine. If your blood is bad, your liver and kidneys out of order, if you are constipated and have headache and an unsightly complexion, don't fail to call on any druggist today for a free sample of this grand remedy. The ladies praise it, Everyone likes it. Large-size package 50 cents. Apr. 26-6m.

Lafayette Commencement.

The commencement exercises of Lafayette College, at Easton, begin on the 23d with the Baccalaureate sermon by President J. H. Mason Knox and the Y. M. C. A. anniversary; followed on Monday by the Senior Class Day and promenade concert by Hassler's Orchestra. The latter is a favorite feature at Easton, and was attended last year by five thousand persons. Tuesday is devoted to various alumni meetings when it is expected that the graduates will—for the first time—take part in the election of a trustee, to be the special representative of their interests. The tenth annual contest for prizes in athletic sports and a re-union banquet of all the old students complete the day's program.

On Wednesday, the 26th inst., thirteen representatives of the forty members of the graduating class speak, and the degrees and prizes are conferred. A new prize of one hundred dollars is offered by an unknown donor for the best essay on "The Place of the Bible in the College Curriculum." The Sophomores give a theatrical display of Calculus on Saturday evening; and on the 27th the new Freshman class is to be formed, either by examination in the studies required for admission, or by their presentation of certificates of proficiency from such approved academies and normal schools as have conformed their courses to the standard of Lafayette. The prospects of this college were never more favorable.

Orders for excursion tickets at reduced rates may be had by addressing the Registrar, Prof. Coffin, Easton.

Council Proceedings.

BLOOMSBURG, JUNE 6, 1889.

Regular meeting of council—all present.

R. R. Little, Esq., appeared and presented a copy of a petition to court to have the burial ground on First street, east of Iron street, known as the Welsh Baptist burial ground, declared a nuisance and the dead removed therefrom. He also serves rule of Court on council and Geo. M. Lockard, returnable 24th day of June, to show cause why same shall not be declared a nuisance and the dead removed to some other well regulated burial ground in said town. Order of Court referred to the solicitor.

Mr. Gross, chairman on committee on fire, water and gas, who were instructed at last meeting to ascertain most desirable site, price of lot and cost of erection of a fire engine house, reports that they have examined several lots and in their opinion the lot on northeast corner Second and East streets is the most desirable. The owners of the lot, Mrs. S. A. Petrikin, F. P. Billmeyer, et. al., have offered to sell it to the town for $15.00 per foot. The frontage will be about 91 feet, four feet of which will be given to the town. The cost of erection of a building in manner proposed would cost about $1500.

Moved that the committee, in conjunction with President Harman, see the Solicitor and if they have the power to accept the offer of sale of said lot, go on and close the contract for its purchase.

Town Constable, M. C. Woodward, appears and asks for instructions regarding the enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting fire crackers, etc. He is instructed that the ordinance will be enforced. He also asked council to buy a dog net for him to use in catching unregistered dogs. Request granted.

Ordinance No. 46, to provide for the licensing of transit retail merchants read and adopted.

Mr. C. W. Miller appears and asks that council exonerate the silk mill from town taxes for a period of ten years in like manner as School Furnishing Company and Carpet Company had been exonerated. Request granted on same conditions as were given the companies mentioned.

Moved and seconded that an order be drawn in favor of C. W. Miller for cobble stones equaling the amount charged against him by Com. of Highways Bidleman, for work done on sewer. Carried.

Moved and seconded that Mr. Miller be exonerated from the payment of bill for leveling sewer ditch brought by Com. of Highways, Housel, who was not authorized to do the work. Carried.

The following petition was presented and read: "To the President and Members of your Council. We, the undersigned citizens and taxpayers of the said town, do most respectfully request that all taxes assessed and levied on dogs be equalized, that is to say, that the assessment be so revised that parties owning more than one dog may not be compelled to pay more than one dollar for each dog." Signed by taxpayers.

An ordinance to amend ordinance No. 45 was read and adopted.

Council sitting as board of revision, Mr. Ringler moved that the limits of the built up portion of the town be fixed same as last year, excluding from said limits the furnace property of Wm. Neal & Sons and that of the Bloomsburg Iron Co.

The date of appeal was, upon motion, fixed for Saturday, June 29, 1889, between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m.

M. C. Woodward was, upon motion, appointed to serve the tax notices for the sum of ten dollars.

Building permits were granted to the following: To the Bloom School District for the erection of a High School Building; to W. R. Kocher & Co. for the erection of a building for handling coal, built of wood and iron, size about 60 x 36 feet; to E. A. Rawlings for the erection of an addition to the rear of his dwelling.

The report of Com. of Highways for May and the bills and accounts were read and approved and Secretary directed to issue orders for same.

On motion council adjourned.

100 Ladies Wanted.

And 100 men to call on any druggist for a free trial package of Lane's Family Medicine, the great root and herb remedy, discovered by Dr. Silas Lane while in the Rocky Mountains. For diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys, it is a positive cure. For constipation and clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Children like it. Everyone praises it. Large-size package, 50 cents. At all druggists.

Death of Mrs. E. W. Greenough.

THE SAD ENDING OF A HAPPY LIFE—COMES HOME FROM THE SOUTH TO DIE.

Mrs. Eben W. Greenough died on Wednesday evening at nine o'clock. She was born on the 25th of March, 1860, and was therefore twenty-nine years old. She was the daughter of Rev. Horatio Hewitt, who at one time was rector of St. Matthew's church of this place and who died here in 1882. It was here she met her husband here the years of her budding womanhood were passed, which now so sadly end.

In 1869 she went from this place to Mrs. Eastman's female college at Media. As soon as her school days were over she took up the more serious duties of life, and in 1880 was married from the house of her brother John, as her father at that time was in charge of a parish in the far west. He lived in Bellefonte and like his father before him, was also a minister and at this time in charge of the Episcopal church in the above named place. He it was who performed the ceremony that made Eben William Greenough and Elizabeth Swann Hewitt man and wife, the Rev. Dr. Hopkins, of Williamsport, giving the bride away. They chose Sunbury for their home, as the parents of Mr. Greenough lived here. They built for themselves a charming home on the river bank, next door to the church of which the father of deceased was rector for six years.

There was no happier home in the land, not even a shadow upon the threshhold to mar the joy and happiness within. In 1881 a little girl, Mary, came to bless their union; two years later Willie added a ray of sunshine to their happy day. Then came the third and last olive branch, sweet little Susette. At about the time of her birth, one year ago, the husband and father was overtaken by catarrhal pneumonia, a grim disease that for a time held its victim near death's door. But his good constitution, developed by the college gymnasium, now stood him in good stead and he pulled through. The rigor of our northern winters is particularly hard on one who has just gone thro' such a siege, and to escape this he sought the milder clime of the sunny south. On the 7th of January of this year Mr. and Mrs. Greenough, Mary, Willie and Susette started for the South. At that time Mrs. Greenough was the picture of health, full of life and of good cheer, happy at the prospects of seeking a place where her husband's health would be promoted. They went to Thomasville, Georgia, and as had been predicted the climate agreed with Mr. Greenough and he was rapidly restored to health. When the warmer days of spring time came again they started on their homeward journey, and thinking to make it by easy stages they stopped at Aiken, South Carolina. Here it was that misfortune seemed to overtake them, for Mrs. Greenough was taken down with typhoid fever, and while she was struggling with this awful malady little Susette was taken sick and died. This was a sad blow to them all, particularly for the mother, who had enough—guided by our finite judgment, we would say, to bear already. The little one was sent on and three weeks ago was buried in the cemetery here. On Monday one week ago the mother came so changed that her friends scarce knew her. She was carried from the train to her home and since then has been delirious most of the time. And now she has gone to join Suzette. So closes the sad chapter in this life that until now had been such a happy one. It is one of the strange and inexorable decrees of fate that the husband who went away sick comes back restored and the wife who went well comes back to die. It was in the plan, and God knows best. Then, too, there is a sweet and pretty picture that comes before us, the joyous meeting of mother and child in Paradise and, best of all, its true. Think of the joy of the little one, cradled on the wings of doves and guarded by angels, at seeing the brightest angel of all to her, her mother. Even looking through tears we may find something to soften the pangs of sorrow. There are, of course, sad hearts here, but what joyous ones there.

Mrs. Greenough will be very much missed by her many friends. She had a bright and cheery disposition; was refined and delicate in her tastes; delighted in doing things to promote the happiness of others, and to this end her house was often the scene of pleasant entertainments of various kinds. Besides her husband and children her mother survives her, and the heart of every one in this community goes out to them all in sympathetic condolence.—Sunbury Democrat June 7.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to do the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Sulphur Bitters would cure her. Extraordinary Generosity.

The Jersey City Fire Insurance Company, represented in this place by C. F. Knapp, agent, has given notice to the Johnstown sufferers that all insurance in said Company against loss by fire, who lost their property by water or fire will receive their insurance from said Company, to the full amount of their insurance.

This is the first instance, so far as known, and the Company deserves the commendation of the public for this noble act.

WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, June 10, 1889.

You know the store.

Its size, its concentration of more than forty stores in one, its helps to your comfort while buying, its well-known record of best values at fair prices—these are all part of an oft-told story to you. In your occasional visits to Philadelphia you've doubtless fully tested the store and its resources. It's meant to be another home to you.

But do you know that wherever you are the store and its goods are as near as if you were here to look and choose and buy?

You can write for what you want and be as well served as if buying in person.

We've told you of the people skilled in goods and their values who fill your written orders, giving you freely of their experience and knowledge that you may have the best we have at the price—and that means the best at the price anywhere.

And we've told you of the illustrated General Catalogue, which brings to your home the goods of the many stores that make up Wanamaker's—a book so arranged and indexed that you can find the price of any article in an instant.

These helps are always at your service. You can have the Catalogue by asking for it on a postal card.

Muslin Underwear.

Machinery has stripped away from the price every bit of extravagance. Completed garments now cost little more than the material once did. No home work, no worry about fit. The best styles we have—for women, for misses, for infants—are shown in the illustrated General Catalogue. Is the book in your home? It will take but a moment to get it—write a postal card.

The thousand and one things you need for Summer wear or use about the house are there.

Of all the Summer floor coverings, Mattings first. Coolest, cleanest, fittest. We have as welcome a word as you ever heard of them.

Nine hundred rolls, fresh from the importer. In two choice grades. If you know Matting worth, you'll marvel at these prices:

1—Heavy China Matting, this season's importation, handsome patterns, $8 the roll of 40 yards; cut, 23c a yard. Give it any test; it comes up right every time.

2—A desirable China Matting, good weight, good designs, $6 the roll; 17c a yard if cut.

No foolishness about either. Solid, well put together.

This is the last special offering in Mattings we shall have this season.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

There seems to be no falling off in our Wall Paper sales. Though the season is fast coming to a close. Why is this so? Because the goods we send out are as good in quality as can be bought anywhere at the prices we offer them. Three things serve us, viz: Quality, quantity and price. The paper we sell we guarantee full length and full weight. These are two points to be careful of in this stage of the business. Unscrupulous manufacturers are making their goods short length at a cheaper price, but it takes more to do your rooms, hence you are the loser.

EDITORS COLUMBIAN, DEAR SIRS:

As I have been exposed to personal abuse by Mr. Derr, I ask in def nse of myself the same privilege.

My answer to Mr. Derr's first issue, was mild and gentlemanly, but seeing it was impossible for him to establish an argument based upon facts, he resorts to personal abuse with a disloyal tongue, and I firmly believe that retaliation is the only sure cure for the abuse disease that Mr. Derr is addicted to.

Now, argument is one thing, and abuse is another; we have had the argument, and now comes the abuse. He compares me to a boa-constrictor; well that is something, better than nothing at all, but I am very much afraid that the snake is on the other side, trying to swallow something he can not get down. He also says I have a swelled head; well, this is better than no head at all. But Mr. Derr's soul reminds me of the one a doctor describes. He says it is so small that it can be put into the barrel of a humming bird's quill, and then blown into a gnat's eye, and it would then have more room than a frog in the Pacific ocean. He says if I was to swallow him, I would have more brains in my stomach than I have in my head. Well, I suppose I would have more whiskey brains, such as beer heads, lager heads, and lunk heads, and besides this the conceity Derr's brains are so shallow, and soft, that they would be easily digested, without the least danger of dyspepsia. I think his brains lies in his lower extremities, which is the cause of his desiring to gratify the lusts of his stomach, and is the cause of his upholding the scares of the devil. I emphatically say you did exaggerate, misconstrue, and misrepresent the scripture, and my former reply.

I did not say that liquor was the cause of all the evils, but I did say it was the cause of a great many evils, and I am safe in saying three-fourths of them. Now, do you see how he misrepresents things and yet denies it; beware of false teachers, as this is one of Satan's strongholds. He also says the temptation was not taken away from Adam and Eve, but the Lord drove them from the garden for their disobedience, and now on the same theory why does he not drive the people from the land to-day on account of their disobedience? You clearly see the absurdity of such doctrine. He says Mr. A. being arrested and sent to the penitentiary, took away his own liberty. Who ever heard of a man taking away his own liberty? That is for others to do, by enacting laws and enforcing them, thereby depriving him of certain privileges. Every law we have causes every person to surrender certain privileges, but in exchange for this surrender, we obtain protection through our government.

I deny that I ever forwarded for publication, that you said, that no man has a right to say what you shall eat, drink or wear, providing you steal it. This is an error on the part of the printer, and not mine as the copy will show, and yet he acuses me of misrepresentation when I am entirely innocent. Mr. Derr speaks of the calibre of the man; his calibre is sized up in the following; in his first issue he spoke boldly of the land of the free, and the home of the brave. What right have you to speak thus? You had better hang your head with shame, and be the last to triumph over freedom. Did you assist or lend a helping hand to bring this about, a free land? Did you personally leave home and family, a brave man, to defend your country, or did you seek shelter behind logs on the mountainf. Now this is what he boasts so much about. He said I said what a contradiction that is, to say first that they have the power of obedience by becoming responsible for the government of their children, and then to say that they are to be under obedience, and he allows the man to slip clear when he has all the power to make laws, &c. He quotes Dr. Talmage on one point as though Dr. Talmage was in sympathy with him, but he is very careful to let Dr. Talmage alone on the amendment question. If Dr. Talmage knew how this preacher stood, he would not allow his name to go in print in connection with his. Any man refusing to attend church because prohibition is preached likes his bitters better than God, and you are in the same boat together, occupying holier places than your hearts permit, and you are after the dollar instead of the good of mankind. He says a man can be a christian whether he makes it, uses it or sells it. On this theory I suppose you frequent barrooms, and associate with drinkers, if all done this what would become of Christianity, and how much more popular drinking would be. Do you see where it would end, and on the same theory there will be distillers, saloon keepers, and drunkards in the Kingdom above. I do not blame you for thinking so, as it is your only salvation. What a nice time it will be up there, about the same as we have it here. People are foolish to expend money to pay preachers to convert the world, if it is not to be changed any. He says there are sins ten times greater than drunkenness of which nothing is said in the pulpit. This is a bare falsehood, just name me one of those sins if you please. When you repeat the Lord's prayer again, please bear in mind where it says, "thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." We, as Americans who can boast of our liberty and not free whiskey, do not desire Irish preachers who were raised under free whiskey, and no liberty, to dictate to us about whiskey and liberty. But you can not expect anything else from that source.

1st Peter 4 46. Yet if any man suffer as a christian let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God on this behalf.

Take heed therefore when you write another article, do not be ashamed of it, and affix your name thereto.

Department of the Interior, Census Office

WASHINGTON, D. C.

To the Medical Profession:

The various medical associations and the medical profession will be glad to learn that Dr. JOHN S. BILLINGS, Surgeon U. S. Army, has consented to take charge of the Report on the Mortality and Vital Statistics of the United States as returned by the Eleventh Census.

As the United States has no system of registration of vital statistics, such as is relied upon by other civilized nations for the purpose of ascertaining the actual movement of population, our census affords the only opportunity of obtaining near an approximate estimate of the birth and death rates of much the larger part of the country, which is entirely unprovided with any satisfactory system of State and municipal registration.

In view of this, the Census Office, during the month of May this year, will issue to the medical profession throughout the country "Physician's Registers" for the purpose of obtaining more accurate returns of deaths than it is possible for the enumerators to make. It is earnestly hoped that physicians in every part of the country will co-operate with the Census Office in this important work. The record should be kept from June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890. Nearly 26,000 of these registration books were filled up and returned to the office in 1880, and nearly all of them used for statistical purposes. It is hoped that double this number will be obtained for the Eleventh Census.

Physicians not receiving Registers can obtain them by sending their names and addresses to the Census Office, and, with the Register, an official envelope which requires no stamp will be provided for their return to Washington.

If all medical and surgical practitioners throughout the country will lend their aid, the mortality and vital statistics of the Eleventh Census will be more comprehensive and complete than they have ever been. Every physician should take a p rsonal pride in having this report as full and accurate as it is possible to make it.

It is hereby promised that all information obtained through this source shall be held strictly confidential.

ROBERT Z. PORTER,
Superintendent of Census.

A Fortunate and Grateful Woman.

Mrs. J. H. Giles, of Everett, Pa., says: "I have suffered for years from kidney and gravel trouble. No physicians or medicine at home did me any good. I finally visited my former home at Rondout, N. Y., and began using Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. A few words tell the result. I am a perfectly well and happy woman once more. may 24-4t

A new counterfeit dollar made of brass with a thin coating of silver electro plate, has made its appearance. The spurious coin is a good imitation. It rings much like the genuine one, only a little sharper. It has the appearance of having been carried in countless pockets, and the stars and figure of Liberty look worn, but the date, "1861," is sharply cut and fails to carry out this impression. The depressed portion of the two sides are off color, looking blue beside a genuine coin. Inferior half and quarter dollars were discovered in circulation in Chicago recently. They are light weight, do not ring, have a dull, leaden color, and ought not to deceive any one.

Weak Women.

The more sensitive nature of the female sex renders women much more susceptible than men to those numerous ills which spring from lack of harmony in the system. The nervous system gives way, sick headache is frequent, the appetite is lost, and other ailments peculiar to the sex cause great suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for such cases, and has received the most gratifying praise for the relief it has afforded thousands of women whose very existence before taking it, was only misery. It strengthens the nerves, cures sick headache and indigestion, purifies and vitalizes the blood, and gives regular and healthy action to every organ in the body.

It is said that a chip or any piece of wood or other hard substance under the tongue of a balky horse will get him over that fit and he will go ahead at once.

Make a very small hole in each end of a fresh egg and after blowing out the contents, close one end with a bit of sealing wax. Cut two pieces of cloth in the shape of the body of a fish, and sew them together on the edges so as to make a pointed bag. Put some sand into this for ballast. The mouth of the bag must be exactly the size of the egg, which is to fastened into it with sealing wax or glue, to form the head of the fish. Having prepared it in this way, paint two eyes on the egg with black paint, and the magic fish is ready to be put into a jar of water. The weight of the sand in the bag must be such that the fish will float on the surface if left to itself but so that a very light touch will cause it to sink. Cover the jar tightly with a piece of india rubber, or any other water proof flexible substance, when a hand is laid on the covering the pressure transmitted to the liquid will cause a little water to enter the egg, and the fish will dive; the heavier the pressure the more quickly it will plunge. Remove the presure from the india rubber and the compressed air in the egg will force it out of the water and the fish will come to the surface again.—Christian Union.

That Tired Feeling

Season is here again, and nearly every one feels weak, languid, and exhausted. The blood, laden with impurities which have been accumulating for months, moves sluggishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly, and the body is still slower to respond. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed. It purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, makes the head clear, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling, and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body.

No More Peddling Without a License

Governor Beaver has approved the Hawkers and Peddlers Bill passed at the last session of the Legislature. The bill absolutely prohibits the hawking and peddling foreign goods, wares and merchandise without a license, except that persons residing within the State may sell articles of their own manufacture without a license.

Preserved Grape Communion Wine.

The Grape crop of A. Speer's Vineyards in New Jersey, promises this year to be one third more than any other previous year. His Vineyards in New Jersey and the products from the grapes he purchases, have enabled him to keep a stock four years ahead. His Unfermented Grape Juice has become a popular evening wine among the best families in New York, and for communion purposes.

OH! MY HEAD!!

Suffering of a New Jersey Senator.—Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.—Terrible Things.

When the stomach is torpid it soon becomes clogged with half digested matters, the blood becomes vitiated and foul; the other organs fail to act normally, and induces a train of symptoms, such as dyspepsia, sick headache, dizziness, drowsiness, palpitation of the heart, pain in the back, loss of appetite.

"There are few things that I believe in with all my heart and it affords no pleasure to tell of one of them." The speaker was ex-Senator Albert Merritt, head of the large fruit firm, 88 Park Place, N. Y., and the scene his office. "I was sick and feared I had become fated to endure the [illegible]

Tortures of Dyspepsia

and a dangerous affection of the kidneys. A relative said to me, 'Why don't you try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y.' I did so. I grew steadily better. I could eat, digest, sleep and work with a clearer head, and the yellow color of my skin had given place to the tones that announce pure blood and every organ of the body in healthy action. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is entitled to the credit of saving my life. If any one has a doubt about the truth of my statements let him write to me. I can give you the names and addresses of fifty persons who affirm, as I do, that 'Favorite Remedy' has begun to flow a baby and a blessing in time of need." Mr. A. Ballowere, Tarrytown, N. Y., says: "For a long time I was troubled with severe attacks of dizziness and due to impure blood and a disordered state of the system. I was advised to try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. I did so and have been completely cured. It's the best thing I ever heard of for any disorder of that nature, and I have recommended it to many with like success." Mr. Daniel Fitts, Taunton, Mass., says: "I recommend Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for dyspepsia and sick headache. I suffered for many years with these complaints, and was cured by Dr. Kennedy's

Blind Sick Headache

TATE SPRINGS, TENN., July 4, 1888.
The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—Seven years ago I contracted an exceedingly bad case of blood poison. I tried a physician, the best at command, but secured no benefit. My throat began to get sore, and my body covered with sores and ulcers. Going from bad to worse, I felt that my grave must be reached in the near future. I gave up the doctors' treatment, and with a despairing hope I commenced taking your medicine. I began to improve from the first bottle, and in a short time the ulcers healed, and my skin cleared off and was entirely well.

One year ago a case of catarrh developed in my system. The physician did his best, but could not cure me; but two bottles of Swift's Specific gave me permanent relief.

Capital Punishment Abolished.

The present Board of Pardons has practically abolished capital punishment in Pennsylvania. It has made a startling record in reversing the laws and the judicial tribunals of the State, and this week it reached the climax by setting aside two judgments of the only proper authority in the administration of the law, by which the death penalty was solemnly decreed against murderers.

When Samuel Johnson could be rescued from the death penalty, after his conviction had been adjudged by every judicial tribunal of the State, it would be simply a mockery of justice to execute any of the dozen or so of condemned murderers in our prisons. There was not a juror or a Judge of either the Oyer and Terminer or Supreme Court that heard the case and decided it under the sanctity of an oath, who ever doubted the correctness of Johnson's conviction; but an old political feud of Delaware county inspired the effort to degrade the administration of justice. The effort once started, with a large conscientious sentiment in the community against capital punishment that embraced the immediate friends and family of the man who was the victim of the cowardly murderer, it was encouraged to summon every grade of crime to defeat the punishment of crime, and it has succeeded.

The apology of the Board is that while doubting the innocence its members also doubted the guilt of Johnson Pray, who authorized or empowered them to inquire into the guilt or innocence of Johnson? Had there been new testimony in the case not passed upon by a judicial tribunal, the apology of the Board would have been excusable if not reasonable; but the only evidence that had not perished in absolute disgrace before it reached a Court, had been passed upon by a Delaware county grand jury, and after hearing only one side of it, the bill was ignored, thereby declaring that the evidence of the prosecution against the Fernwood gang did not even furnish probable cause for further judicial inquiry. There was, therefore, no after-acquired evidence for the Board of Pardons to consider, and the assumption of the right to open and reverse the solemn judgments of all the legal tribunals of the State, was a violent assumption of authority and a grotesque burlesque of both law and justice.

With Johnson rescued from the judgment of the law, there was eminent fitness in commuting the death penalty in the case of Mrs. Burrows, now in Moyamensing for the murder of her husband, and a like commutation in the case of Mrs. Whiteling will logically follow. The same Board having been hung in effigy in Juniata county for saving a wife-murderer from the gallows, it must give wives an even chance to murder their husbands; and that leads to the only logical end of practically abolishing capital punishment in Pennsylvania.—Ex

The Pennsylvania Railroad's Facilities to Atlantic City.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's facilities for reaching Atlantic City were never so complete as they are on the opening of the present season. During the past winter and spring the road-bed of both the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic has been greatly improved. The West Jersey has been bettered in various ways and reballasted; the track of the Camden and Atlantic has been renewed on many portions of the line and track-tanks have been added for the use of fast trains. The equipment, both in locomotives and cars, is superior in every respect, and will be ample for the comfortable conveyance of the largest midsummer crowd.

The terminal facilities of both ends of the line possess the advantage of superior location. The Market Street station in Philadelphia, from which the fast trains of both the West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic railroads start, is the central seashore station of the city, accessible from all sections by direct lines of street-cars, and within fifteen minutes of Broad Street station by the Market Street cable cars. In addition to the central station at Market Street, there is also a ferry from Vine Street and a boat running from Vine and Shackamaxon Streets direct to the Camden side of the Market Street ferry.

At Atlantic City the passengers are landed in the heart of the city, at a point from which every part of the city and suburbs are easily reached by the new electric railway.

The special excursion travel is delivered at the large and handsome new excursion house, the Sea View Hotel, which is just completed. This is the most commodious and best appointed house of the class on the coast, and offers every facility that the day excursionists could demand.

With all their facilities improved and strengthened, with ample equipment and fast trains, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's branches to Atlantic City will grow stronger in the favor of the traveling public.

An exchange very truthfully says: The man who attempts to please everybody, generally ends in pleasing nobody. The only proper course to pursue is to do the best you can and that which you honestly think is right. The kickers of course, will howl, but they have got to do just so much howling anyway, else the balance of humanity would not be aware of their existence.

Hospital Remedies.

What are they? The growth of intelligence in medical matters has given rise to a demand for a class of genuine, reliable medicines. The opportunity of the ignorant quack, who grew rich curing everything out of a single bottle has passed. To supply satisfactorily this demand this list of remedies has been created. They are the favorite prescriptions of the most famous medical practioners of the day, gathered from the hospitals of London, Paris Berlin and Vienna. Prescriptions which cost the patients of these specialists from $25 to $100, are here offered, prepared and ready for use, at the nominal price of One Dollar Each. Not one of them is a cure all; each one has only the reasonable power of curing a single disease and each one keeps its contract. Sufferers from Catarrh, Diseased Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Fever and Ague, Neuralgia, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, or Nervous Debility, should send stamp for descriptive catalogue to Hospital Remedy Co., No. 303½ West King St., Toronto, Canada. If your druggist does not keep these remedies remit price and we will send direct free of duty.

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA

These twin diseases cause untold suffering. Doctors admit that they are difficult to cure—so do their patients. Paine's Celery Compound has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia—so say those who have used it.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism at the knee and foot for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I used only one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and was perfectly cured. I can now jump around, and feel as lively as a boy." FRANK CAROLI, Eureka, Nevada.

I have now taken nearly four bottles of the Compound, and am free from the complaint. I feel very grateful to you." CHAS. H. LEWIS, Central Village, Ct.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:
